ZONE ZERO INFO

What is Zone Zero, and why is it critical in wildfire prevention?

In February, Governor Gavin Newsom signed an executive order to accelerate the adoption of regulations requiring many California homeowners to create a 5-foot "ember-resistant" zone around their home. This area is known as Zone Zero.

With most homes lost to wildfires due to flying embers, keeping this area clear of combustible materials can dramatically reduce the chances of home ignition.

Stay informed and learn how to create a defensible space around your home to safeguard our community from wildfires.
